

EXPERIENTIAL TALKS FROM THE EDGE OF THE MAP TO EVERYDAY LIFE

Antarctic Expedition Guide and educator with two decades guiding in Antarctica and 30 years teaching marine and environmental science through hands-on, experiential learning.

Backed by long-term research on the lasting impacts of immersive field experiences, Lori brings real-world perspective, scientific context, and lived experience to conferences, organizations, events, and classrooms.

SIGNATURE TALKS

What the Wild Teaches Us

Blending 20 years of expedition stories with research on the benefits of time spent outdoors, Lori explores how the icy continent shapes how we think about our health, our work, and the choices we make.

Permission to Choose Differently

Drawing from her own unconventional path, Lori shows how paying attention, following curiosity, and taking small, intentional risks can change what's possible in life and work.

OTHER POPULAR TOPICS

- Antarctica in a Warming World
- Photography in Challenging Environments
- Traveling and Working in Antarctica
- Life in the Southern Ocean
- What's Krill Got to Do With It?
- Citizen Science in Action

Customized for different audiences as needed. Additional topics and themes available by request.

At a Glance

- ✓ Antarctic Expedition Guide since 2006
- ✓ Founder of global, education-focused Antarctica communities with over 36,000 members
- ✓ Internationally recognized nature, wildlife and pet photographer
- ✓ Author of a chapter in the We Lead leadership book series

WITHOUT QUESTION THE MOST ENTERTAINING AND EXCITING SPEAKER WE HAVE EVER HAD

Lori Gross is without question the most entertaining and exciting speaker we have ever had. Her presentation was interesting, educational and her photography is breathtaking. She has a gifted ability to describe scientific endeavors, marine life, and environmental threats in a way that is interesting and understandable by everyone.

*- Nick, Director
The Forum Speaker Series*

What Audiences Experience

- A renewed sense of perspective shaped by time in wild places
- A deeper understanding of how attention, curiosity, and choice shape our lives and work
- Tangible connections between nature, science, and everyday decisions
- Stories that make complex ideas accessible, human, and memorable
- Inspiration grounded in real experience, not hype

Lori Gross

- INSPIRATIONAL SPEAKER
- ANTARCTIC GUIDE
- ENVIRONMENTAL EDUCATOR

Available in person or virtually

lori@oceanlori.com

oceanlori.com

+1-410-990-1058

